Truth Told in Sleep.

According to an expert psychoanalyst and pundit of spiritual healing in New York, every dream is the result of the repression and secrecy practiced during the day, and every word spoken in dreams is the unguarded truth. Various foods and beverages, taken before retiring for the night, are known agencies of dreams. Corned beef and cabbage and mince pie or plum pudding are said to be the most prolific sources of conversational dreams. Wakeful wives should find the new psychoanalytic scheme an excellent one. And here is the scientific discovery for housewives: If you wish to know all about your husbands give them a late supper of corn beef and cabbage. And then stay awake and you will hear the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth about his doings.

Joke Was on the Boss.

An office boy, sixteen years old, who works in a West Bottoms factory, was invited by a friend, two years his senior, to dine at a leading hotel the other night. Just as the lad and his companion were in the midst of their feast the manager of the factory took a seat at the next table. The manager saw the boy and nodded to him. The next day the manager told the other factory executives that the office boy had dined at the hotel and they decided to ask him about it. The boy was summoned. "Heard you were at the Hotel Blank last night. What did you eat?" was the question put to the boy. "Same as the manager had, 'coffee and,'" was the office boy's reply, as he left the room. The laugh was on the boss.—Kansas City Star.

Sparing the Rod, Spoiling Mamma. A Larned youngster escaped punishment recently by his wit, says the Tiller and Toller. The mother of the three-year-old lad has frequently wept at seeing her son punished, so the other day when the boy's father picked up a switch, the little chap advised, "You'd better not whip me, papa; you'll make mamma cry." And papa didn't whip.—Kansas City Star.

PUBLIC HIGHWAYS

TESTING ALL ROAD MATERIAL.

Hardness, Toughness and Binding Power of Rock Should Be Determined—Qualities Defined.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. Counties or communities intending to build water-bound macadam roads run considerable risk of failure unless they have the rock they are to use tested for hardness, toughness, and binding power. These are the qualities, in the opinion of the engineers of the office of public roads and rural engineering of the department, which experience has shown to be most essential to the endurance of a road. In a recent technical paper designed to assist engineers in making accurate laboratory tests of road material, the road specialists define these qualities as follows:

"Hardness is the property a rock should possess in order to resist successfully the abrasive action of traffic, especially iron-tired vehicles, which tend to grind to dust the individual fragments of rock forming the wearing course of macadam road.

"Toughness is the property a rock should possess to resist successfully fracture under the impact of traffic.

"Binding power, or cementing values as it is more frequently called, is the ability which the dust of a rock should possess or develop by contact with water, so as to bind or cement the larger rock fragments together and prevent their displacement under the shearing action of traffic. This property is especially valuable in water-bound macadam construction, since it is dependent upon to maintain the integrity of the wearing course as the road surface is worn off by traffic."

The use of rock suited to withstand the wear of traffic is regarded as so important that the department offers to test samples of road-building rock for any citizen free of charge, provided the samples are sent prepaid and are submitted in accordance with definite printed instructions. These instructions will be mailed by the office of public roads and rural engineering to whoever requests a copy. Where a community is considering using a local stone or other stone which has not already proved its durability in highway work, the highway supervisors would do well to secure a laboratory report from the department. These laboratory tests are conducted with elaborate and rather expensive apparatus, and in the case of untried rock are the only practical safeguards against the employment of material that will wear out too quickly to prove a good investment.
